LA UNI × FEME / LEARNING NOTEBOOKS

Documenting and sharing with care

Consent, selection and review of public evidence.

1 / Agree before recording

Explain the purpose, audience, public destination and what can remain private. Allow people to participate without appearing. Keep permissions and contacts outside the public repository.

2 / Choose useful evidence

Every file should show learning: an object, table, diagram or authorised reflection. Describe what was learned, adapted and remains open. Avoid uploading complete files merely because they are available.

3 / Review content and metadata

Review faces and voices, addresses, signs, background documents, maps, filenames and location metadata. Export a clean copy. An image without GPS can still show an identifiable place.

4 / Validate the public version

Review the final copy with the community and record permission for that file and destination. The authorised video can be published; do not extend that permission to other photos or accounts. Keep originals and consent records under restricted access.

5 / Share and allow correction

Add a bilingual title and description. On Drive, create a separate folder only for authorised copies; do not link a folder containing private files. Agree how to request corrections. Explain that downloaded copies and public history may persist.
